“A Samuel Beckett Laboratory: Praxis, Pedagogy, and Performance”

This lecture will explore a number of practical and philosophical issues surrounding the living legacy of Samuel Beckett in performance, based on work at the new Samuel Beckett Laboratory at Trinity College, which offers practice-based research using performance as a methodology to research Beckett's texts. Today's lecture will point toward the future of Beckett's theatre-ideas through emerging digital, interdisciplinary, intercultural, and experimental practices.
